How About This Chief Grady?

Why have you permitted a non-resident of this town to receive nearly 100 barrels of beer, ale and whisky within the last 30 days, the goods consigned to him at a street and number where he does not reside? Are you making it any of your official business to know what local expressman carts the goods to the address where this man does not live and then turn over his team to the consignee of the liquors to drive the same through our streets across the borderline of this town? Why is it that none of your police officers ever see this well known man driving a local express team loaded with from two to six barrels known to contain intoxicants? How does it always happen your patrolmen are "out of the way?" Do you think you can make citizens believe this man, not a resident of Peabody, has a right to have such quantities of intoxicating liquors shipped here marked an address purporting to be his abode? Is there anything irregular about this wholesale consignment of liquors being received in this town? Do you acquaint yourself with the records of shipments of liquors which are at your disposal at the freight house? Are you as, chief of the police sworn to do your duty fearlessly, giving honest and efficient service when you make no attempt to stop this illegal traffic? Do the selectmen know this man? Have you told them the facts? Why do you still permit illegal transportation of liquors by non-residents and certain well known characters?

Cabaret Blonde Fools Gay Diners

A bewitching female impersonator and the annual ball game were the two big features of the Leather Men's outing in Middleton Wednesday. The Manufacturers after four annual defeats won the ball game, 8 to 4 thanks mostly to Don Smith of the Essex Kid Co. of Lynn who pitched. Don had about everything that Johnson hasn't and he did a great stunt. The eager salesmen just couldn't hit. Hannis and Bagley were the battery for "Cap" Hayes' team but it wasn't the day for the salesmen. After making two nice catches in the center field Clarence Murray muffed a fly that let in a run. Leach played in left garden for "the best sellers." Dan Gorman second in the running race, was one of the stars in the game. He held down second bag for the victors. "Dicko" Marrs was a Tris Speaker.

The cabaret star was a manufactured blonde who could dance and then some. "She" went dangerously near some of the tables in "her" graceful glides and several of the Peabody men lost their hearts and bet money "she" was a girl until he took off "her" wig.

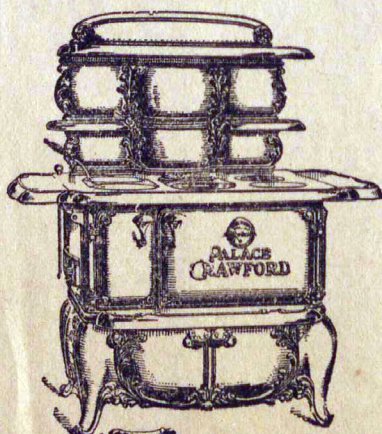

The committee in charge who deserve credit for their work are William Armstrong, Louis P. P. Osborne, W. T. Langmaid, Henry L. Hayes, James Hunton and Frank P. Munroe.

DEFENDS HEALTH BOARD ON SEWER

EDITOR ENTERPRISE

In the Salem News of July 16 in relation to the opening of the sewer gate on Grove St., allowing the sewage to empty into the brook, the following statement appeared: "The matter was called to the attention of Chairman Sullivan of the Board of Health who professed to know nothing about the gate being open. The Salem officials claimed the outlet had been open for two days sending a big flow of sewage into the open canal." This statement is incorrect. I was aware that the gate was open, being

NAME WOMAN AS LEATHER WEIGHER

The honor of being the first woman to be appointed a weigher of leather in Peabody goes to Mrs. Lillian Maud McCall. Her appointment was by the selectmen last night, her name being one of 20 designated as weighers.

Mrs. McCall is employed at the Osborne factory on Wallis St. and is the wife of Mountford McCall or 54 Lowell Street. Her husband is employed at the General Electric in Lynn.

SELECTMEN

Kenneth McCharles was awarded the carpenter work on the Hall house owned by the town and H. C. Foster was given the painting. McCharles' bid was $203 and Foster's $143 J. A. Jeffers was the lowest bidder with $193.95 but on motion of Selectman Sheehy the board voted for McCharles 4 to 1, Mr. Buxton voting for Jeffers. Town counsel Sheehan was instructed to ask $200 from the Essex Trap Rock Co. for removing 2000 sq. ft. of rock owned by the town.

On motion of Mr. Stickney, a sixth class license was granted to M. Reece, the druggist in South Peabody.

informed of it by employees at work cleaning the brook at that point last Monday. I immediately called the members of the board together who voted to notify the board of Public Works. This was done by letter. I was informed that Chairman Boyle had notified the Salem authorities that the gate would have to be opened to let out the sewage.

In relation to the News article which appeared last night that "The Commission of Public Works and the Board of Health are inviting law suits on the town on account of said dumping of sewage into the brook," I would say that the board of health is not in charge of the gate and sewers of the town and furthermore, that the board of health will not stand for manufacturers, Public Works Commission or any other persons polluting any brook of the town.

CLEVER BACKSTOP WITH BOSTON RED SOX

Leslie Nunamacher, Star Catcher.

Leslie Nunamacher, one of the Boston Red Sox' clever catchers, was born in 1889, in Aurora, Neb. He started with Lincoln, Neb., in 1909, and played with that club until late that same season, when he was sent to Dubuque, Ia. He was drafted that season by the Chicago Cubs, but was sent back to Bloomington that season. He was drafted by Boston that fall. He bats and throws right-handed.

Scattering Notes of the Diamond

Leslie Joe Bush is the full name of the Athletics' young hurler.

Denny Doeller is said to possess the speediest automobile in Washington.

Bill Lathrop, the Notre Dame flogger lined up by the Giants, is only nineteen years old.

First thing we know the world's series will be here. Fastest games in the slowest town—Philadelphia.

Catcher Schrang of the Athletics is one of the few men in baseball who can bat well either right or left handed.

Even with George Mullin gone the Tigers are considered to have the hardest hitting pitching staff in the American league.

Nick Altrock, the self-styled comedian, is said to look, act and feel like a tragedian when he is told to go in the pitcher's box.

Some ball players do not think they are great until they are chased by an umpire. A few fines would correct this line of thought.

Manager Huggins of the Cardinals has made the announcement he will trade any man on his team if he thinks he can improve the combination.

Frank Baker says that the fade-away ball of Fred Falkenberg is harder to hit than that of Mathewson. He has hit Matty's over the fence, but not Long Cy's.

PICKS THE NAPS AND GIANTS

Billy Sunday, Noted Evangelist and Former Ball Player, Favors Cleveland and New York.

"I feel sorry for Frank Chance and some of the other big managers this year," said Billy Sunday the other day.

"The experience of Chance simply shows that you can't make a ball club unless you have the players, even though you have great baseball brains. I make this prediction, however, that Chance, if given the opportunity, will build up a great baseball machine for the New Yorks.

"This has been a year of surprises so far. It looks to me very much like Cleveland in the American league. They are fighting every inch of the way and have had few setbacks. Who would have thought that Falkenberg would develop as he has this year? He, to my mind, is one of the big surprises of the game.

"Then, there's Chapman and Carlsch, who are playing great ball. That explains, by the way, why Toledo is having such a poor year. This town will continue to have bad ball if Cleveland grabs this club's good players as fast as they develop.

"I can't see the Phillies in the National league race, although they have been playing great ball. I pin my faith in Muggsy McGraw and his Giants," concluded Bill.

KEPT DONLIN PLAYING CARDS

Amusing Little Incident of World's Series of 1905 Is Related by James J. Corbett.

Jim Corbett recalls an amusing little incident in connection with the world's series between New York and the Athletics in 1905.

Jim has long been a strong rooter for the New York club.

"I never will forget that world's series in 1905 if I live to be a thousand years old," said Jim. "It convinces me, the more I think of it, that McGinnity is a wise old owl and always has his noodle with him. Say, he'll more than make good in Tacoma.

"While Joe and Mathewson were depended upon in that series to capture nearly all the games, McGraw depended a lot on the batting of Mike Donlin. Well, McGinnity had a big bet down, and he was strong to win that money. It was the first game at Philadelphia.

Mike Donlin.

"Now, Donlin always liked to go out with the boys for a good time, and there was no telling what he might pull off, so McGinnity came to me that evening and said:

"Say, Jim, I wish you'd get hold of Mike and keep him tonight."

"Sure," I said, and I grabbed Donlin and immediately got busy on him. Mike liked to play pinocchio, so I challenged him to a game and we went up to my room and had it out. Well, I kept him there playing pinocchio all night, and he never had a chance to go out. Of course, the next day he was in shape, and he banged that ball so far that New York won a block.

Lots of Johnsons.

This is a great year for the Johnsons in the pitcher's box. In Walter Washington has about the best there is, while Cincinnati has a marvel in George Johnson, the Indian twirler. The latter has done sensational slab work for the Reds and it is no fault of his that Joe Tinker's club is not up near the top, as when he goes in the box the Reds are pretty certain to land a victory.

Automobile Pitchers.

The introduction of Packard, the Cincinnati recruit pitcher, calls attention to the other automobiles on the twirling staffs of major league clubs. Benz and White of the Chicago White Sox, Ford of the New Yorks and Chalmers of the Phillies are some of them.

Enterprise Cup For Town League Series of Games

With a series of games among town teams to begin July 26, Peabody will have plenty of good baseball for the balance of the season. The Peabody league organized at a meeting attended by managers of ten local teams in the office of the Enterprise last Monday night gives every promise of booming the national pastime in the Tannery Town.

Nearly 40 managers, captains and players crowded into the meeting enthusiastic for the proposed series. The schedule will be arranged at a meeting of the managers next Monday night when umpires and scorers will be chosen and the opening games will be announced.

It is proposed to play two games on the park, one at the Bleachery playground, Warren Street playground and at the South Peabody playgrounds, the Rockdales playing always on their home grounds.

Only amateur players will be on the roster and each team is limited to 14 players, two of which may be outsiders, although not a battery performer.

The Enterprise will donate a loving cup to be awarded the pennant holders at the end of the season. Several other prizes are assured for the premier batsman, base stealer, best run-getter and best all around player. It is understood that several local merchants will offer prizes to the players.

As a result of agitation among the local teams over their prowess the meeting was called to organize the league. Frank W. Penniman was made president and James E. O'Connor, secretary. Other officials of the league will be elected Monday night. The executive board will include the managers, who will settle all disputes.

Here are the clubs together with the list of managers: Atlantics, Joseph Cullen; Waverlys, Leland Page; Belmonts, Joseph Gaynon; Keystones, John Linehan; Athletics, T. J. Mahoney; Bleachery, James McKay; Checkers, John McNamara; Crescents, Maurice Maney; Rockdales, Frank McKeen; Franklins, Joseph Kelley.

Waverlys Trim Keystones 6 to 5

The Waverlys and Keystones will be two of the fighting teams in the newly formed Peabody league if their battle of last Saturday is a fair criterion. The Waverlys nosed out a game that seemed lost, coming strong in the last two innings, winning 6 to 5.

Hallowell, who the week before lost an easy fly and caused his team to lose to Rockdale, "came back" strong in this scrap. He started the batting rally in the eighth that let Deke Kelley and his band of husky players get into the running. Kelley followed with a single, putting Hallowell on third.

A double steal was then pulled off and Smith scored Kelley. The score was then 4 to 3, in favor of the Keystones. In the ninth the Waverlys scored three runs and held the rivals to a lone tally.

Catcher Jack Burns had a finger split in the first of the game. His absence was felt. Manager Linehan of the Keystones is anxious to put his pets against those under the wing of Manager Leland Page and both are eager for the league to get under way.

BLEACHERY WINS

The Bleachery playground team defeated the East-end nine Tuesday, 17 to 9. Flanagan and Coan were the battery for the victors. Carney was the star batsman, scoring a homer and two-bagger.

JAKE STAHL "FIRED."

Chicago.—Practically at the request of President James R. McAleer, Manager Garland J. Stahl of the Red Sox resigned his position and "Bill" Carrihan has been appointed as his successor.

McAleer could not "see" Stahl as a bench manager. Neither could the majority stockholders.

Declines Boston Team's Offer.

Portland, Ore.—Fielder Jones, president of the Northwestern League admits he had been offered $25,000 to manage the Boston Red Sox. He will not accept, he said, and added:

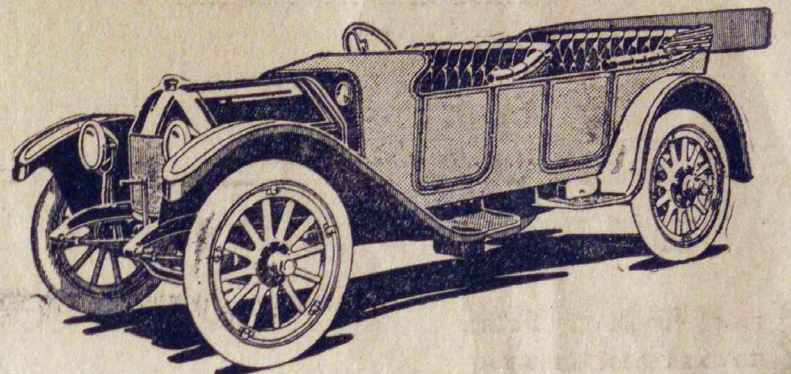

"There is another American League team in the field for a new manager."

CANNOT LIVE ON $12,000.

Washington.—The statement by Secretary Bryan in his lecture at Hendersonville, N. C., that he could not live in Washington on his salary as secretary of state, and was obliged to take to the Chautauqua platform to augment his official income, has caused a good deal of comment in Washington. The disposition was to defend Mr. Bryan from the suggestion that a man who had been known to the country as having the simple tastes of the plain people, whose cause he had championed, should be able to live on $1000 a month or $33.33 a day.

Peabody Women Who Are Active in Social Life

Members of the Rebecca Nourse House who assisted at the annual outing in Danvers last Saturday, were Mrs. Lyman Osborn, Regent of the D. of R.; Mrs. John Burbeck, Mrs. J. B. Palmer, Mrs. H. D. Kennard, Frances Manning, Olive Goldthwait, Ruth Manning, Elizabeth and Anna Osborn, Elizabeth Mackintosh, Beth Warner, Helen Taylor, Majorie Munroe, Marjorie Taylor, Louise Burbeck, Dorothy Palmer, Calvin and Delmore Kennard, Ruth and Lyman Whitten of Malden, the niece and nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Osborn, Olive Southwick, Allan Munroe and E. King. Among those who portrayed characters in "Alice in Wonderland" were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Poor, formerly of Peabody, now living in Danvers.

A reception will be tendered John Mahoney of Lynn by the F. of A. St. Theresa Court, next Tuesday night. Mr. Mahoney is the newly elected Deputy of the local order. Mrs. Katharine Ronan, C. R., Mrs. Margaret Meade, Julia Donovan, Mrs. William McElroy and Mrs. Elizabeth Nolan will be in charge.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the West Peabody Grange held a most successful lawn party at the home of Mrs. Edward Horner on Lake street Wednesday night. The grounds were decorated with Japanese lanterns and the several booths made an attractive background. In charge were Mrs. Walter Brown, president of the Auxiliary; Mrs. Fred Wyman, in charge of the cake; Rena DeCatur served the punch; Grace Taylor presided at the candy table, and Stephen Stickney served the ices. A large sum was realized, which will be used to add necessities at the Grange Hall. Initiation at Starlight Rebekah Lodge will be on July 28. Mrs. Lina

B. Danforth, N. G., will direct the work, assisted by Mrs. Alice Ferguson, Mrs. Josephine Parker, Mrs. Nellie Lord, Mrs. Mabel Batchelder, Mrs. Emily Jordan, Mrs. Bessie Israel and Mrs. Edith Goodell.

Several members of St. Theresa Court will attend the annual outing of the Eastern Essex Court tomorrow at St. John's College grounds in Danvers. A large program of sports and entertainment has been arranged and the event promises to be a bigger affair than ever.

Mrs. P. H. Belne and daughter, Mary, are spending a vacation in Claremont, N. H.

Extensive preparations are being made for the annual lawn party given by the W. R. C. in August. Many new features will be introduced this year to make the party a success. These ladies are interested: Mrs. Ida Barker, president; Mrs. D. P. McCarthy, Mrs. Margaret McMillan, Mrs. Maria Williams, Mrs. Clarence Beckett, Mrs. Ella Wright, Mrs. Charles Brooks, Mrs. M. J. Brown, Mrs. Annie Ferren, Mrs. M. A. Osborn, Mrs. William Wiley, Mrs. Lillian Carr and Mrs. F. Dearborn.

Mrs. D. P. Grosvenor, formerly well known in Peabody social and club circles, now residing in Winthrop, keeps up her interest in local affairs. She attends all the meetings of the Directors of the Babies' Hospital. Although removed from Peabody, D. P. Grosvenor, who was a merchant here for 40 years, and Mrs. Grosvenor keep their interest centered in Peabody.

Several representing the C. F. of A. attended the annual lawn party in Danvers last night. The party was under the auspices of Whittier Circle, C. of F., and was a great success.

"23 Has No Terror For This 'Copper'"

Unmindful of the taunts of his brother patrolmen, Special Officer Bernard J. Gill, on duty this week as substitute "copper" on the local force, says "23" has no terror for him.

He wears a badge with that number inscribed on his shining shield. If he has any superstitions he is courageously wearing the badge with its "hoodoo" numeral and smiling.

Gill lives on Lynnfield street, a thoroughfare none the less famous because of the fact that patrolman "Bob" Patterson resides thereon. Gill is in line for a regular job if the reserve police bill is enacted by the town.

CHEAPER LIGHTS

As announced on page three, the price of tungsten lamps by the Peabody Electric Light Dept. are cheaper. Following the reduction by the wholesalers the town board voted to give the local patrons a saving. This latest step makes Peabody furnish tungstens cheaper than any other electric light plant in this locality.

JUMPS FROM 9TH FLOOR.

Boston.—Some time between midnight and dawn Sunday morning a young woman threw herself from the window of her room on the ninth floor of the Hotel Bellevue, Beacon street, and was dashed to death on the cement floor of the courtyard below. Her body lay where it fell for at least six hours until, discovered by an employee of the hotel, it was removed by the police to the North Grove street morgue.

This is an epitome of one of the strangest mysteries with which the Boston police have dealt in years: "Mrs. Straber, New York," penned on the hotel register with labored care, is the only name known. The young woman arrived at the Bellevue, carrying all she had in the world in a new rattan suitcase.

SARDINE INDUSTRY.

Washington.—Rehabilitation of the American sardine industry, admitted by the canners themselves to be in a deplorable condition, has been undertaken by the department of agriculture. Secretary Houston announces that as a fresh step in the direction the department has established a special sardine laboratory at Eastport, Me., with Dr. C. F. Weber of the bureau of chemistry in charge.

TO SETTLE FOSS STRIKE.

Boston.—Federal investigation of the strike in Gov. Foss's HyCo Park plants has been instituted at the request of labor leaders in Washington. Assistant Secretary Louis F. Post of the United States department of labor is in Boston to conduct this investigation, and will lend his influence as mediator by mutual consent of parties concerned in this labor dispute.

Scratch on Nose Caused Death. Lockjaw, which set in three days after he had scratched his nose by falling from a fence, was the cause of the recent death at London of a house decorator, named Carey.

"GRAND TRUNK MAY BUILD ROAD NOW."

Governor Pothier Thinks Retirement of Mellen Paves the Way

Providence.—"It is my personal belief that the Grand Trunk railroad will now be built as originally planned," said Governor Aram J. Pothier of Rhode Island, when asked what effect he believed the retirement of President Mellen from the Boston and Maine would have.

"While I have nothing official to offer, I am of the opinion, nevertheless, that the $3,000,000 already invested in the project will not be permitted to go to waste. The line is necessary to New England generally."

"I have no comment to make on Mellen's retirement from the Boston and Maine road."

Vice-President John S. Murdock of the Southern New England railway said he had no comment whatever to make, when asked last evening to make a statement on Mellen's action.

TRANSATLANTIC AIR TRAFFIC ASSURED.

New York Minister Tells School Children Time Is Not Far Distant.

Boston.—That the time is not far distant when the Atlantic ocean will be crossed by aeroplane and dirigible balloons was the prophecy by Rev. Dr. William Elliot Griffiths of New York, formerly pastor of the Shawmut Congregational church in Boston, in his lecture at the Old South Meeting House before several hundred school children of Boston and vicinity.

"Inventors and men of science change the face of the world more than warriors or statesmen," he said. "Yet the poets read the future and foretell what is coming long before and far better than either the experimenter or the patentee. Tennyson made reference in 1842, when he wrote: 'There rained a ghastly dew of falling human bodies from airy navies.' Already 300 aviators have fallen from the 'central blue,' in which 'hostile navies' may yet grapple."

Control of Tubercular Institutions.

Boston.—Recommendations for the control of institutions which treat tubercular patients were made at a hearing by the House recess committee which is studying the subject. Charles H. Adams, vice-chairman of the state board of charity, made three recommendations—first that there should be more state sanatoria, since those already established are such a success and there is such a great public demand for more; second, that there should be more local hospitals, and third, that there should be a more flexible system of local relief, and the state subsidy should be extended locally where proper outdoor or home relief is given.

Ball Covers Sewed by Hand. So far no machine has been found to give satisfaction in sewing the covers on baseballs. Hundreds of thousands of balls are used every year, and they are all hand sewed. A man working his best can not finish more than three dozen a day.

Counts!

The million dollar "Hump" at Mechanicsville is the latest development in freight yard construction.

A freight train is backed up the slight incline to the "Hump." There the train is broken up.

The cars are then carried by gravity each to its classified track.

The older method required backing the entire train to place one car.

This is only one of many ways devised to give you the best freight service on the continent.

SURPASSING SODA

Our soda is all that money, experience, skill and our hobby of purity and cleanliness can make it. Sparkling water, rightly charged—pure fruit syrups, plenty of ice, thin glasses. These are a few of the features that account for its excellence. Try our perfect and daintily served soda once and you'll become a regular patron of our fountain.

Pay the Police

Peabody policemen who are now taking their turns in annual vacations should be given their pay in advance covering the time of their leave of absence on regular vacation. Such a procedure would enable the policemen to have extra money for their holiday. The federal government supplies its employees with vacation money in advance; many corporations provide a similar facility. The selectmen could well attend to this detail.

The Tax Rate

The small tax payer as well as the big one is of course pleased at the five dollar reduction in the 1913 tax rate fixed by the assessors. A reduction was anticipated four months ago the ENTERPRISE hinted an $18 rate might be reached. That an even lower rate has been determined is a source of gratification to all taxpayers. It is reasonable to expect an increased rate for 1914 although the assessors are hopeful of holding much of the personal tax derived this year. The criticism that the finance committee should have allowed higher appropriations in their estimates in view of the anticipated lower tax rate this year was a bit uncanny in its expression unless one really thinks the finance committee gifted with powers to forecast. The town now could well have a revaluation of all taxable properties.

ROUNABOUT

Here's a bit of repartee I over heard in "Mac's" barbershop with "Mayor" Coleman taking the honors. "You ought to wear a tall hat like the mayor of Salem," hurled Jimmie Granada. "And you ought to mind your own business," rejoined the astute town official.

I understand that the engineer at Thayer Foss Co. is so enthusiastic over blowing the factory whistle morning and night that he is now pulling the chord twice as long just for luck. More power to him and may the whistle never fail to tell the public workmen are being called to their onery tasks.

"Sullivan Park" is becoming a more pleasing spectacle on Lowell Street and shows off the public health bureau very nicely. I hear many compliments for landscape - gardener "Brock" Wilson who laid out the patch.

I am told an elm tree in front of Albert Reed's home on Central Street has proved a big magnet for flies and honey bees much to the annoyance of the neighbors. Free flowing sap is said to have been discovered the cause by tree warden Callahan.

Taxpayer Samuel Rosen walked into my "santum sanctorum" one day this week and demanded to know who gave us his name to put in the paper. He said he wanted to know so he could tell his lawyer. He was ordered to connect his four family house with the sewer and this week workmen started on the job. We praised the health officials last week for doing their duty and Sam was all wrought up.

I understand the Progressive party is holding for candidates for Rep. Among the names I heard of are S. Howard Donnell, (ie") Armstrong, and David Craig.

For citizens for citizen-udge Irwin this from Topsfield. who was Rep-eld and the psfield hasn't small a town." papers.

Live Longer Nowadays.
Life insurance folk say, says the New York Telegraph, that the expectation of life nowadays is well above seventy, and that persons nowadays are supposed to live at least until they are eighty, and if they reach that age should last until they are ninety, and so on, and about five out of every two hundred persons should walk the earth for a century.

TITUS' BIG SALE

A large announcement is made on page four of today's ENTERPRISE which is of more than ordinary interest to housekeepers and to young couples who are soon going to house-keeping. A. C. Titus & Co., of Salem the great home-furnishing store, will begin on Monday next a six days Sale of their beautiful furnishings for the home, including their splendid line of Summer furniture, at 20 per cent lower than their regular daily moderate prices.

Upon some of the furniture the discount will be as high as twenty-five, thirty three and a third and even fifty per cent. Taking into consideration that this firm's goods are widely known for the excellence of their qualities, for their exceptional beauty and for their impartially low prices, and to have the privilege for six days of buying them at such straight forward reductions, this Sale is indeed the kind to attend which dollar-sense people need no urging.

Less Babies Fed On Bottled Milk

That less babies are being reared
by the bottle is one of the observations made by Miss Josephine Byrne,
the trained nurse now in the employ of the Peabody health board. She is giving her time to visiting homes
wherein infants rule the household
and is imparting useful knowledge in hygiene to the mothers.

In her two first weeks she called on 60 babies and a majority of the infants, according to Miss Byrne,
are minus the death dealing milk
bottle. Miss Byrne thinks this is a good sign. She has found her work interesting and believes that she has accomplished some real good. She has been cordially received by young mothers and has been able to leave
some helpful suggestions in the proper care of the babies.

Miss Byrne is a graduate of the Carney hospital and is a Salem girl.
She is here for three months but she may be permanently retained if the health board's desire to further the work is carried out.

Kenaly's Triple Is Rockdale's Doom

Frank Kenaly is the hero of the East-end this week, for last Saturday
he laced out a long three bagger
which paved the way for the Atlan-
tics to beat the Rockdales, 10 to 7.
Kenaly's triple came when the hit
was needed in the seventh and before Guy LeCain was summoned from the outgarden as relief boxman, the East-end boys had counted enough runs to win. Mahoney, who tried out with Hartford as a catcher this spring,
preceded Kenaly with a slashing
single to centre.

Beck of Beverly was the "hired"
talent to oppose the Athletics. He lacked support but helped to defeat
his team, but having poor control in the initial round.

The shining lights on the Rock-
dales in this game were Giles at short, and Milbury at first. Giles will be one of the big spots on the high school team next year, Milbury at first was in the limelight. LeCain
had a sore arm but he got the kinks
out of it and made easy work of the heavy hitters for the balance of the day.

BARTHOLOMEW POND

Miss Edith Carr of Danvers is staying with Mrs. Mable Weekes for two or three weeks.

Mrs. P. C. Peirce of West Somerville and Mr. George Washburn of Dorchester were the guests of Mrs.
J. F. Estes at Camp Edith.

Mrs. Angus Kennedy of Braintree,
Miss Bertha Lewis, Mrs. Mary Currier and Mr. Frank Bradford of Lynn were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wood.

Mrs. A. Estella Cross, Marion Moore and Carol Morton attended the banquet and entertainment of the Lake Shore Minstrels at the Hose
House Thursday evening. Mrs. Cross
having coached the entire performance.

The many friends of Harry Gale wish him every success in his new work.

The campers are grateful to Herbert Weeks, Earl Farnell and William Burnham for their orchestra music,
so all dance. If they keep up by the end of next month John St.
George and Frank Estes will be some dancers.

Harvey Moore will spend the next two weeks at Sebago Lake with the boys of the St. Stephen's choir, Lynn.
The Improvement Club will have a sail along the South Shore July 26.

BLEACHERY WINS

The Bleachery team defeated the Warren St. nine Saturday, 9 to 8.
Clotley, Reed and O'Connor, the latter of the now famous baseball family
in Crow Village, were not in the lineup, and to this fact does Instructor Dick Burns ascribe the defeat of his juveniles.

WOULD SAVE $140 A TON.

Washington—Naval experts' figures
showing that a government armor
plate factory costing $8,466,000 would save $140 a ton on armor, or more than a million dollars net a year have been submitted to Congress by Secretary Daniels. The secretary's report was sent in reply to a Senate resolution and supplemented previous statements issued by him advocating a government-owned armor plate factory.

Millions can be saved either by operating a government plant or by compelling competition among the private manufacturers.

THREATENS LYNCHING.

Steamboat Springs, Co.—A construction gang working on the extension of the Denver and Salt Lake railroad
attempted to drive from the grading
camp a party of Japanese laborers by the use of ropes and revolvers.

They conducted the Japanese out of town and told them if they returned
the ropes would be used.

Sheriff Chivington arrested three of the ring leaders.

NEWEST DRAPERY IN VEILS

CRAPE veils for mourning, either in black or white, are not more than a yard or a yard and a quarter in length. When a longer veil is desired —which is not often the case—chiffon bordered with crape is used instead of all crape. The new draperies require a veil almost or quite square and these squares of crape are finished with a three-inch border of the same material, which extends all around the four sides. There are several new drapes, but the two most artistic ideas show the veil falling in a double or triple box plait from the back of the turban, or draped to fall in two points at the back from bonnet shapes. In the latter case the veil provides the trimming for the bonnet.

Longer veils or chiffon with crape borders are used on both bonnets and turbans. Among some of the smartest styles these long veils provide the drapery for the shape, enveloping it entirely, and fall in ample folds about the figure. This is for those who desire the extreme in mourning modes.

Other novelties to be noted are the use of black and white crape together and of all white crape for any period of mourning. The most striking and beautiful mourning millinery to be seen on Fifth avenue is in white crape.
Shapes are covered with this fabric and trimmed with lilies, roses or other blossoms made of it. The same idea is carried out in black. The pure white of white crape and the beauty of the fabric itself make for it a triumph above all other materials.

FOR NIGHTGOWN OR NEGLIGEE DAYS OF HIGH HEELS ENDED

Exquisitely Pretty Robes Serve Both
Purposes—Crepe de Chine and White Lace Chiefly Used.

Alluring robes in delicately colored
crepe de chine and white lace are listed as nightgowns, but may quite as properly be worn as negligees, and
most women buy them for that purpose. The back and front, each cut from a single breadth of double-width
crepe de chine, are so gradually sloped
from the lower edge—finished with
an a-jour-headed hem—to the bust,
that nowhere is there an atom too
much fullness. At the top the crepe de chine width at back and front are opened at the right side and drawn in a point to that shoulder, while the other side is caught under the left arm. The entire lower section is swung from a deep yoke of white lace
whose neck is drawn taut by a ribbon run beading after the robe is on,
for there is no other opening and no
fastening to bother with. The elbow
sleeves are simply wide puffs of lace
ending in narrow ruffles gathered with ribbon and beading.

MISSSES' DRESS

Misses' dress of royal blue crepe
and light blue accordion pleated voile.
Broad gelsha belt with stiff bow.

Sandals Which, With Their Accessories, Are Remarkably Pretty,
Assure Downfall of "Stilts."

Off with your high stilts, Miss Abreast-with-Fashion! Down to within a quarter inch of the pavement
with your heels! For that is what sandals are going to bring you to. And then won't you be an insignificant little person? But as you'll certainly adopt sandals, you may as well learn
that they're kept on with ribbons
laced about the ankles—a horrid nuisance, the lacing—and tied there in bows or clasped with tiny buckles.
The buckles are certain to be more popular than the bows first, because they're more easily adjusted and, second, because they're so pretty. One of the prettiest pair as yet brought out
is in three tones of gold set with Bulgarian colored stones. Another set is of an opaque dark blue stone, a third
in two tones of silver set with sapphires and topaz, and a fourth in dull
gray finished metal set with sapphires.
Then there are the buckles of tortoise shell bearing silver nail heads
and of platinum set with rhinestones
and of gold set with pearls.

New Wrinkle.

The fingers and hands of elbow
length silk gloves wear out, leaving the uppers comparatively new. Where there is a baby in the house these may be turned to good use. Place one of baby's socks on the gloves, the leg
part of the sock and the hemmed end of the glove being together. Then cut socks for the baby after the pattern.
Sew carefully into shape with flat
seams. Here you have a good lightweight sock only for the cost or trouble of making. The top should be reinforced to withstand the wear and tear caused by safety pins.

Violet Holder.

An extremely simple and practical rubber novelty comes in the shape of a bunch of violets, and is designed for the protection of a gown when the natural flowers are worn. It is made of green rubberized silk, the shade of the violets, and is outlined with a green wire. When worn
it effectually prevents the penetration
of any moisture to the gown. The wire edge permits of shaping the holder to
the bouquet proper, and the latter is
then attached to the corsage or wherever else desired.

Quaint Effect.

The streamer trimming for hats is being favored by both French and English women. Among the novel,
quaint effects to be considered is one
showing an inch-wide, black moire
ribbon draped from the right side of the hat snugly across the throat to the left shoulder, where it falls unrestrained
to the hem of the gown, says the New York Herald. Only picturesque or youthful women should undertake the streamer trimming.

Rose Flavoring.

Fill a glass bottle with fresh, fragrant petals, crowding them down to its fullest capacity, then pour in enough pure alcohol to submerge.

Social Forms and Entertainments

Idea for Cotton Wedding.

The first year of wedded life brings
the "cotton" celebration and the occasion may be made a regular frolic if only a congenial few are bidden to make merry. Make the invitation spool shape, a good sized one. Then decorate with cotton batting sifted over with diamond dust; mass it on the window sills, mantel, on the piano and
everywhere that it will be effective.
The host may wear a cotton suit for this occasion and it will be easy for the hostess to wear a cotton gown. If a suit cannot be managed for the ordieggroom, he can wear a cotton shirt
and necktie. Perhaps it will be possible to get real cotton plants with
the bursting cotton pods which may be used in lieu of flowers. Here is a laughable stunt with which to start
the evening's fun. Have narrow white cotton tape arranged as for an old-fashioned spider web, wind it in and out, over and under furniture, but instead of having all the guests play at once ask one person at a time and allow three minutes to see how much tape he can entangle and roll up in that time. When the umpire calls,
"Time's up," the piece of tape is cut
off, and after all have had a chance,
each piece of tape is measured and the
one having the longest piece is awarded a prize, which should be of cotton fabric. In the instance where this was done the reward was a cotton batting doll candy box filled with candy. We have all seen the cotton Santa Claus
figures and the little doll Christmas tree ornaments? Well, these would be just the thing for favors at an affair of this kind.

Another pastime would be to pass a basket filled with different colors and lengths of cotton tape with knots tied in them and the trick is to see who can untie the greatest number of knots
in the time set. A prize may be offered for this. In the south little bales of cotton may be obtained, which would be appropriate souvenirs for this celebration.

Novel Hard Times Party.

Here is a new version of a "hard times" or "poverty" party. The invitations were written on brown paper
such as butchers use for wrapping
meat, and the lettering was done with a heavy lead pencil. At the top of the sheet was this nursery rhyme:
Hark hark; the dogs do bark;
The beggars are coming to town—
Some in rags, and some in tags.

And some in a silken gown.
followed by the request to dress "in gladdest rags" and come to the address on the day, date and hour given.
Masks to be removed at 10:30. The hostess handed each "beggar" a dance
program number as the number
of her guests, and as each entered
the large living-room, which had been cleared for dancing, a number was pinned upon the back so votes could be registered as to "who was who,"
for the best (or worst) costume. One may imagine the fun such a party
would make. Prizes were awarded and card tables were provided for those who did not care to dance. Refreshments were served after the unmask-

ing. Some of the beggars represented
were the typical tramp with his entire worldly goods done up in a bandanna handkerchief, which he carried
on a stick over his shoulder; the wandering band of gypsies in gaudy colors
and many beads and gew-gaws; an old
organ grinder with a life-sized toy
monkey, which was a mechanical toy
and performed most natural stunts,
and the little flower girl with her twin
sister, the "match" girl.

Alphabet Contest.

Perhaps some of you can devise a better name for this pastime, but I am sure every one who knows their "A, B, C's" can play it.

The answers to all the queries are made by simply using letters, and it will be well for the hostess to give several examples before beginning the contest:

1. Containing nothing. M T (empty).
2. Statement of indebtedness. I O U (I owe you).
3. Part of a house. L (ell).
4. An insect. B (bee).
5. To behold. C (see).
6. A famous poem. L E G (elegy).
7. A tent. T P (teepee).
8. A number. A T (eighty).
9. Unit of measure used in printing. M (em).
10. All right. O K.
11. Slang expressions. G or O G or O U (gee—oh gee—oh you).
12. A foe. N M E (enemy).
13. Indefinite quantity. N E (any).
14. A vegetable. P (pea).
15. Intemperance. X S (excess).
16. An image. F E G (effigy).
17. Poorly dressed. C D (seedy).
18. Two of a kind. W (double u).
19. To covet. N V (envy).
20. A bird. J (jay).
21. A verb. R (are) or B (be) or C (see).
22. A common beverage. T (tea).
23. A girl's name. L C (Elsie).
24. Another one L N (Ellen).
25. Yet another. F E (Effie).
26. Still another. K T (Katie).
27. A literary effort. S A (essay).

Bible Contest.

Some days ago a correspondent requested a Bible guessing contest to use when she entertained her Sunday school class. Here are a few questions
and may be helpful, and I have no doubt others may be added to make it longer. The answers are not given,
for it will be much more instructive if they are looked up, with the aid of a
concordance:

Give the first and last words of the Bible.

Whose three daughters were the
fairest in all the land?

How old was Methuselah when he died?

Who was called "a ready scribe in
the law of Moses?"

Give the names of the three persons
who were put in the fiery furnace.

Who was the author of the expression, "What hath God wrought?"

Who was Moses' brother?

Who went down into a pit on a
snowy day and slew a lion?

Who said: "The harvest is past,
the summer is ended, and we are not saved?"

Who was the mother of Samuel?

MADAME MERRI.

Vaporous Blouses.

Summer blouses of chiffon or net
as delicate as the stuff that dreams
are made of, had an irresistible appeal
even when they were first shown in the chilly days of spring. Their own intrinsic charm won immediate popularity for them then. But now, with the days of mounting mercury at hand
this diaphanous quality is to be the supreme touch of elegance of the season. It characterizes entire toilettes composed of layers of net, chiffon and filmy materials.

PRETTY SHAMROCK ALPHABET

Three little leaves of Irish green
Uplifted on one stem
On Irish soil are always seen,
They form a magic gem.

One leaf is truth and valor won,
The other one is love;
These three little leaves are blest
By dewdrops from above.

The dainty woman's belongings may be made daintier by using letters with this emblem of pretty sentiment embroidered on them.

SYNOPSIS.

George Anderson and wife see a remarkable looking man come out of the Clermont hotel, look around furtively, wash his hands in the snow and pass on. Confronted with the man, he says: "I am Edith Challenor. I have been dead for some time. I am now in the snow. The hotel manager declares him to be Orlando Brotherson. Physicians find that Miss Challenor was stabbed and not shot. Grown an aged detective, and Sweetwater, his assistant, take up the case. Mr. Challenor tells of a batch of letters found in his daughter's desk, signed 'O. B.' All are love letters except one, which shows that the writer was displaced. This letter was signed by Orlando Brotherson. Anderson goes with Sweetwater to identify Brotherson, who is found in a tenement under the name of Dunn. He is an inventor. Brotherson tells the coroner Miss Challenor repulsed him with scorn when he offered her his love. Sweetwater recalls the mystery of the murder of a washerwoman in which some details were similar to the Challenor affair. Sweetwater gets lodgings in the same building with Brotherson. He bores a hole in the wall to spy on Brotherson. He visits him and assists the inventor in his work. A girl sent by Sweetwater with Edith Challenor's letters is ordered out by Brotherson. He declares the letters were not written by him. Sweetwater is unmasked by Brotherson, who declares he recognized him at once. The discovery is made that the letters signed 'O. B.' were written by two different men. Sweetwater goes to Derby in search of the second 'O. B.' whom he expects to locate through one Doris Scott, mentioned in the letters. She is found acting as nurse for Oswald Brotherson, who is critically sick and calls the name of Edith in his delirium. Sweetwater comes across a peculiar hut in the woods. He sees a load of boxes marked 'O. B.' taken into the hut and under the supervision of Doris Scott. Doris tells Challenor of seeing in a dream the face of the man who killed Edith. The door bell rings and she recognizes the visitor the man of her dream. It is Orlando Brotherson, who requests an interview with his brother. It develops that Orlando is working on a flying machine. Oswald is told of Edith's death.

"Chance," he repeated. "Orlando, I believe in God."

"Then seek your comfort there. I find it in harnessing the winds; in forcing the powers of nature to do my bidding."

The other did not speak, and the silence grew heavy. It was broken, when it was broken, by a cry from Oswald:

"No more," said he, "no more." Then, in a yearning accent. "Send Doris to me."

Orlando started. This name coming so close upon that word comfort produced a strange effect upon him. But another look at Oswald and he was ready to do his bidding. The bitter ordeal was over; let him have his solace if it was in her power to give it to him.

Orlando, upon leaving his brother's room, did not stop to deliver that brother's message directly to Doris; he left this for Truda to do, and retired immediately to his hangar in the woods. Locking himself in, he slightly raised the roof and then sat down before the car which was rapidly taking on shape and assuming that individuality and appearance of sentient life which hitherto he had only seen in dreams. But his eye, which had never failed to kindle at this sight before, shone dully in the semi-gloom. The air-car could wait; he would first have his hour in this solitude of his own making. The gaze he dreaded, the words from which he shrank could not penetrate here. He might even shout her name aloud, and only these windowless walls would respond. He was alone with his past, his present and his future.

Alone!

He needed to be. The strongest must pause when the precipice yawns before him. The gulf can be spanned; he feels himself forceful enough for that; but his eyes must take their measurement of it first; he must know its depths and possible dangers. Only a fool would ignore these steep slopes of jagged rock; and he was no fool, only a man to whom the unexpected had happened, a man who had seen his way clear to the horizon and then had come up against this! Love, when he thought such folly dead! Remorse, when Glory called for the quiet

He recognized its morbid fang, and knew that its ravages, though only just begun, would last his lifetime. Nothing could stop them now, nothing, nothing. And he laughed, as the thought went home; laughed at the irony of fate and its inexorableness; laughed at his own defeat and his nearness to a barred Paradise. Oswald loved Edith, loved her yet, with a flame time would take long to quench. Doris loved Oswald and he Doris; and not one of them would ever attain the delights each was so fitted to enjoy. Why shouldn't he laugh? What is left to a man but mockery when all props fall? Disappointment alone was the universal lot; and he would go merrily with him if he must take his turn at it. But here the strong spirit of the man reasserted itself; it should be but a turn. A man's joys are not bounded by his loves or even by the satisfaction of a perfectly untrammelled mind. Performance makes a world of its own for the capable and the strong, and this was still left to him. He, Orlando Brotherson, despair while his great work lay unfinished! That would be to lay stress on the inevitable pains and fears of commonplace humanity. He was not of that ilk. Intellect was his god; ambition his motive power. What would this casual blight upon his supreme contentment be to him, when with the wings of his air-car spread, he should spurn the earth and soar into the heaven of fame simultaneously with his flight into the open.

He could wait for that hour. He had measured the gulf before him and found it passable. Henceforth no looking back.

Rising, he stood for a moment gazing, with an alert eye now, upon sections of his car as had not yet been fitted into their places; then he bent forward to his work, and soon the lips which had uttered that sardonic laugh a few minutes before, parted in gentler fashion, and song took the place of curses—a ballad of love and fondest truth. But Orlando never knew what he sang. He had the gift and used it.

Would his tones, however, have rung out with quite so mellow a sweetness had he seen the restless figure even then circling his retreat with eyes darting accusation and arms lifted towards him in wild but impotent threat?

Yes, I think they would; for he knew that the man who thus expessed his helplessness along with his convictions, was no nearer the end he had set himself to attain than on the day he first betrayed his suspicions.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The Hut Changes Its Name.

That night Oswald was taken very ill. For three days his life hung in the balance, then youth and healthy living triumphed over shock and bereavement, and he came slowly back to his sad and crippled existence.

He had been conscious for a week or more of his surroundings, and of his bitter sorrows as well, when one morning he asked Doris whose face it was he had seen bending over him so often during the last week: "Have you a new doctor? A man with white hair and a comforting smile? Or have I dreamed this face? I have had so many fancies this might easily be one of them."

"No, it is not a fancy," was the quiet reply. "Nor is it the face of a doctor. It is that of a friend. One whose heart is bound up in your recovery; one for whom you must live, Mr. Brotherson."

"I don't know him, Doris. It's a strange face to me. And yet, it's not altogether strange. Who is this man and why should he care for me so deeply?"

"Because you share one love and one grief. It is Edith's father whom

"I Have No Son."

you see at your bedside. He has helped to nurse you ever since you came down this second time."

"Edith's father! Doris, it cannot be, Edith's father!"

"Yes, Mr. Challenor has been in Derby for the last two weeks. He has only one interest now; to see you well again."

"Why?"

Doris caught the note of pain, if not suspicion, in this query, and smiled as she asked in turn:

"Shall he answer that question himself? He is waiting to come in. Not to talk. You need not fear his talking. He's as quiet as any man I ever saw."

The sick man closed his eyes, and Doris watching, saw the flush rise to his emaciated cheek, then slowly fade away again to a pallor that frightened her. Had she injured where she would heal? Had she pressed too suddenly and too hard on the ever gaping wound in her invalid's breast? She gasped in terror at the thought, then she faintly smiled, for his eyes had opened again and showed a calm determination as he said:

"I should like to see him. I should like him to answer the question I have just put you. I should rest easier and get well faster—or not get well at all."

This latter he half whispered, and Doris, tripping from the room may not have heard it, for her face showed no further shadow as she ushered in Mr. Challenor, and closed the door behind him. She had looked forward to this moment for days. To Oswald, however, it was an unexpected excitement and his voice trembled with something more than physical weakness as he greeted his visitor and thanked him for his attentions.

"Doris says that you have shown me this kindness from the desire you have to see me well again, Mr. Challenor. Is this true?"

"Very true. I cannot emphasize the fact too strongly."

Oswald's eyes met his again, this time with great earnestness.

"You must have serious reasons for feeling so—reasons which I do not quite understand. May I ask why you place such value upon a life which, if ever useful to itself or others, has lost and lost forever, the one delight which gave it meaning?"

It was for Mr. Challenor's voice to tremble now, as reaching out his hand, he declared, with unmistakable feeling:

"I have no son. I have no interest in life, outside this room and the possibilities it contains for me. Your attachment to my daughter has created a bond between us, Mr. Brotherson, which I sincerely hope to see recognized by you."

Startled and deeply moved, the young man stretched out a shaking hand towards his visitor, with the feeble but exulting cry:

"Then you do not blame me for her wretched and mysterious death. You hold me guiltless of the misery which nerved her despairing arm?"

"Quite guiltless."

Oswald's wan and pinched features took on a beautiful expression and Mr. Challenor no longer wondered at his daughter's choice.

"Thank God!" fell from the sick man's lips, and then there was a silence during which their two hands met.

It was some minutes before either spoke and then it was Oswald who said:

"I must confide to you certain facts. I honored your daughter and realized her position fully. Our plight was never made in words, nor should I have presumed to advance any claim to her hand if I had not made good my expectations, Mr. Challenor. I meant to win both her regard and yours by acts, not words. I felt that I had a great deal to do and I was prepared to work and wait. I loved her—"

He turned away his head and the silence which filled up the gap united those two hearts as the old and young are seldom united.

But when a little later Mr. Challenor rejoined Doris, in her little sitting-room, he nevertheless showed a perplexity she had hoped to see removed by this understanding with the younger Brotherson.

The cause became apparent as soon as he spoke.

"These brothers hold by each other," said he. "Oswald will hear nothing against Orlando. He says that he has redeemed his fault. He does not even protest that his brother's word is to be believed in this matter. He does not seem to think that necessary. He evidently regards Orlando's personality as speaking as truly and satisfactorily for itself, as his own does. And I dared not undeceive him."

"He does not know all our reasons for distrust. He has heard nothing about the poor washerwoman."

"No, and he must not—not for weeks. He has borne all that he can."

"His confidence in his older brother is sublime. I do not share it; but I cannot help but respect him for it."

It was warmly said, and Mr. Challenor could not forbear casting an anxious look at her upturned face. What he saw there made him turn away with a sigh.

"This confidence has for me a very unhappy side," he remarked. "It shows me Oswald's thought. He who loved her best, accepts the cruel verdict of an unreasoning public."

Doris' large eyes burned with a weird light upon his face."

"He has not had my dream," she murmured, with all the quiet of an unmet conviction.

Yet as the days went by, even her manner changed towards the busy inventor. It was hardly possible for it not to. The high stand he took; the regard accorded him on every side; his talent; his conversation, which was an education in itself, and above all his absorption in a work daily advancing towards completion, removed him so insensibly and yet so decidedly, from the hideous past of tragedy with which his name, if not his honor, was associated, that, unconsciously to herself, she gradually lost her icy air of repulsion and lent him a more or less attentive ear, when he chose to join their small company of an evening. The result was that he turned so bright a side upon her that toleration merged from day to day into admiration and memory lost itself in anticipation of the event which was to prove him a man of men, if not one of the world's greatest mechanical geniuses.

Meantime, Oswald was steadily improving in health, if not in spirits. He had taken his first walk without any unfavorable results, and Orlando decided from this that the time had come for an explanation of his device and his requirements in regard to it. Seated together in Oswald's room, he broached the subject thus:

"Oswald, what is your idea about what I'm making up there?"

"That it will be a success."

"I know; but its character, its use? What do you think it is?"

"I've an idea; but my idea doesn't fit the conditions."

"How's that?"

"The shed is too closely hemmed in. You haven't room—"

"For what?"

"To start an aeroplane."

"Yet it is certainly a device for flying."

"I supposed so; but—"

"It is an air-car with a new and valuable idea—the idea for which the whole world has been seeking ever since the first aeroplane found its way up from the earth. My car needs no room to start in save that which it occupies. If it did, it would be the modification of a hundred others."

"Orlando!"

As Oswald thus gave expression to his surprise, their two faces were a study: the fire of genius in the one; the light of sympathetic understanding in the other.

"If this car, now within three days of its completion," Orlando proceeded, "does not rise from the oval of my hangar like a bird from its nest, and after a wide and circling flight descend again into the self-same spot without any swerving from its direct course, then have I failed in my endeavor and must take a back seat with the rest. But it will not fail. I'm certain of success, Oswald. All I want just now is a sympathetic helper—you, for instance; some one who will aid me with the final fittings and hold his peace to all eternity if the impossible occurs and the thing proves a failure."

"Have you such pride as that?"

"Precisely."

"So much that you cannot face failure?"

"Not when attached to my name. You can see how I feel about that by the secrecy I have worked under. No other person living knows what I have just communicated to you. Every part shipped here came from different manufacturing firms; sometimes a part of a part was all I allowed to be made in any one place. My fame, like the ship, must rise with one bound into the air, or it must never rise at all. I was not made for petty accomplishment, or the slow plodding of commonplace minds. I must startle, or remain obscure. That is why I chose this place for my venture, and you for my helper and associate."

"You want me to ascend with you?"

"Exactly."

"At the end of three days?"

"Yes."

"Orlando, I cannot."

"You cannot? Not strong enough yet? I'll wait then—three days more."

"The time's too short. A month is scarcely sufficient. It would be folly, such as you never show, to trust a nerve so undermined as mine till time has restored its power. For an enterprise like this you need a man of ready strength and resources; no one whose condition you might be obliged to consider at a very critical moment."

"Orlando, balked thus at the outset, showed his displeasure."

"You do not do justice to your will. It is strong enough to carry you through anything."

"It was."

"You can force it to act for you."

"I fear not, Orlando."

"I counted on you and you thwart me at the most critical moment of my life."

Oswald smiled; his whole candid and generous nature bursting into view in one quick flash.

"Perhaps," he assented; "but you will thank me when you realize my weakness. Another man must be found—quick, deft, secret, yet honorably alive to the importance of the occasion and your rights as a great original thinker and mechanic."

"Do you know such a man?"

"I don't; but there must be many such among our workmen."

"There isn't one; and I haven't time to send to Brooklyn. I reckoned on you."

"Can you wait a month?"

"No."

"A fortnight, then?"

"No, not ten days."

Oswald looked surprised. He would like to have asked why such precipitation was necessary, but the tone in which this ultimatum was given was of that decisive character which admits of no argument. He therefore merely looked his query. But Orlando was not one to answer looks; besides, he had no reply for the same importunate question urged by his own good sense. He knew that he must make the attempt upon which his future rested soon, and without risk of the sapping influence of lengthened suspense and weeks of waiting. He could hold on to those two demons leagued in attack against him, for a definite seven days, but not for an indeterminate time. If he were to be saved from folly—from himself—events must rush.

He therefore repeated his "No," with increased vehemence, adding, as he marked the reproach in his brother's eye, "I cannot wait. The test must be made on Saturday evening next, whatever the conditions; whatever the weather. An air-car to be serviceable must be ready to meet lightning and tempest, and what is worse, perhaps, an insufficient crew." Then rising, he exclaimed, with a determination which rendered him majestic, "If help is not forthcoming, I'll do it all myself. Nothing shall hold me back; nothing shall stop me; and when you see me and hear my car rise above the treetops, you'll feel that I have done what I could to make you forget—"

He did not need to continue. Oswald understood and flashed a grateful look his way before saying:

"You will make the attempt at night?"

"Certainly."

"And on Saturday?"

"I've said it."

"I will run over in my mind the qualifications of such men as I know and acquaint you with the result tomorrow."

"There are adjustments to be made. A man of accuracy is necessary."

"I will remember."

"And he must be likable. I can do nothing with a man with whom I'm not perfectly in accord."

"I understand that."

"Good-night then." A moment of hesitancy, then, "I wish not only yourself but Miss Scott to be present at this test. Prepare for the spectacle; but not yet, not till within an hour or two of the occasion."

And with a proud smile in which he flashed a significance which startled Oswald, he gave a hurried nod and turned away.

When in an hour afterwards, Doris looked in through the open door, she found Oswald sitting with face buried in his hands, thinking so deeply that he did not hear her. He had sat like this, immovable and absorbed, ever since his brother had left him.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Silence—and a Knock.

Oswald did not succeed in finding a man to please Orlando. He suggested one person after another to the exacting inventor, but none were satisfactory to him and each in turn was turned down. It is not every one we want to have share a world-wide triumph or an ignominious defeat. And the days were passing.

There Came a Light Knock at the Door.

He had said in a moment of elation, "I will do it alone;" but he knew even then that he could not. Two hands were necessary to start the car; afterwards, he might manage it alone. Descent was even possible, but to give the contrivance its first lift required a second mechanic. Where was he to find one to please him? And what was he to do if he did not? Conquer his prejudices against such men as he had seen, or delay the attempt, as Oswald had suggested, till he could get one of his old cronies on from New York. He could do neither. The obstinacy of his nature was such as to offer an invincible barrier against either suggestion. One alternative remained. He had heard of women aviators. If Doris could be induced to accompany him into the air, instead of clinging sodden-like to the weight of Oswald's woe, then would the world behold a triumph which would dwarf the ecstasy of the bird's flight and rob the eagle of his kingly pride. But Doris barely endured his as yet, and the thought was not one to be considered for a moment. Yet what other course remained? He was brooding deeply on the other subject, in his hangar one evening—it was Thursday and Saturday was but two days off) when there came a light knock at the door.

This had never occurred before. He had given strict orders, backed by his brother's authority, that he was never to be intruded upon when in this place; and though he had sometimes encountered the prying eyes of the curious flashing from behind the trees encircling the hangar, his door had never been approached before, or his privacy encroached upon. He started then, when this low but penetrating sound struck across the turmoil of his thoughts, and cast one look in the direction from which it came; but he did not rise, or even change his position on his workman's stool.

Then it came again, still low but with an insistence which drew his brows together and made his hand fall from the wire he had been unconsciously holding through the mental debate which was absorbing him. Still he made no response, and the knocking continued. Should he ignore it entirely, start up his motor and render himself oblivious to all other sounds? At every other point in his career he would have done this, but an unknown, and as yet unnamed, something had entered his heart during this fatal month, which made old ways impossible and oblivion a thing he dared not court too recklessly. Should this be a summons from Doris? Should (inconceivable idea, yet it seized upon him relentlessly and would not yield for the asking) should it be Doris herself?

Taking advantage of a momentary cessation of the ceaseless tap tap, he listened. Silence was never profounder than in this forest on that windless night. Earth and air seemed, to his strained ear, emptied of all sound. The clatter of his own steady, un-hastened heart-beat was all that broke upon the stillness. He might be alone in the Universe for all token of life beyond these walls, or so he was saying to himself, when sharp, quick, sinister, the knocking recommenced, demanding admission, insisting upon attention, drawing him against his own will to his feet, and finally, though he made more than one stand against it, to the very door.

Senses of Plants.

The sense most developed in plants is that of sight, which enables them to see light but not to distinguish objects. This sense limitation is found among many living creatures, such as the earthworm, oyster and coral, etc., which possess no localized visual organ, but give proof of their luminous impressions by the contractions that they manifest when exposed to a ray of sunshine. Similarly, it is easy to gauge the influence of light on plants. Cultivate a plant in a room with a window only on one side and its stalks in growing will incline toward the source of light. Physiologists explain this by suggesting that the side to the dark grows more quickly than that exposed to the light. There remains, however, the fact that the plant has reacted to the light of whose effect it was conscious.

A sense common to many plants is that of touch. Of this the most illustrative example is, as its name implies, the sensitive plant. Another leaf, responsive to the touch, is the catch-fly, whose two halves close down upon the other by means of a central hinge.—Harper's Weekly.

Liars Tagged Here.

Dyaks, natives of Borneo, are extremely truthful. So disgraceful, indeed, do the Dyaks consider the deceiving of others by an untruth that such is handed down to posterity by a curious custom. They heap up a pile of branches of trees in memory of the man who has uttered a great lie, so that the future generations may know of his wickedness and take warning from it.

The persons deceived start the tugong bulu—the liar's mound—heaping up a large number of branches in some conspicuous place on the path to another.

PRIEST IN RACE FOR SENATORSHIP

Rep. A. Franklin Priest, of Haverhill where he is a prominent attorney
announces himself as a candidate for the senate from the 4th Essex District which comprises Peabody according to his letter to the ENTERPRISE.

I wish to announce to the voters of Peabody, Middleton, Georgetown,
Groveland, Boxford, Merrimac, Ames-
bury and Haverhill that I shall be a candidate for the Senate from the 4th Essex Dist.

I have had the honor to represent the 2nd Essex Dist. in the House of Representatives for the past four years. My record is open for inspection. If elected Senator, I shall continue to serve the best interest of the people.

The reasons for entering into this contest are numerous and well founded and which will be fully submitted to the people of this district for their judgment later on in the campaign.
The weather is too warm to talk politics and therefore the only statement
that I shall make at the present time
is that I am in the fight to the finish
and to win.

I would greatly appreciate your kindness if you would publish this letter.

Yours truly,

GARDNER PARK, THE HOMESITE BEAUTIFUL

Progress at Gardner Park; Grading Streets and Laying Granolithic Walks

OVER $50,000 TO BE EXPENDED IN HIGH CLASS IMPROVEMENTS

The Best for the Homeseeker

The Best for the Investor

Keep your eyes on GARDNER PARK and watch the development, buying and building
activities at this sightly and beautiful home
site now being improved by THE O'CON-NELL REAL ESTATE TRUST, the largest developers of first class residential properties in New England.

GARDNER PARK, formerly the well-known Gardner farm, comprising 200 acres,
is the biggest and best residential real estate
development in the history of realty undertakings in Essex County. Ideal in its accessibility and natural attractiveness and unequalled in the first-class improvements that will make this home site one of the finest residential sections in the state.

The $50,000 improvements now under way
at GARDNER PARK reflect the very best
standards of high-grade development work.
A handsome entrance, a beautiful 80-foot
parkway, with 20-foot driveways on either
walks, gutters, curbing, sewers, electric
side, wide streets, shade trees, granolithic
lights and every modern convenience, will make GARDNER PARK the ideal home site
in a class by itself.

All the elements that contribute to health,
GARDNER PARK home sites. Clear air,
clean environments, beautiful view with river
outlook, a rare combination of the charms of country life at its best. Sixty acres of the property have been sold to the Salem Golf Club. This will add to the attractiveness of the surroundings as the club will make their property one of the finest golf and country club sites in the commonwealth. These ideal conditions are rarely found as they are combined in GARDNER PARK, only seven minutes from the center of the business and social privileges of the city. Excellent trolley car service within the five-cent fare limit.

Enterprise without sensationalism characterizes the policy of the O'Connell Real Estate Trust in the development of home sites.
No balloon ascensions, no band concerts, no
cheap silverware. We believe in the gold of merit and honorable methods that appeal to thinking people who build good homes and
make good neighbors.

GARDNER PARK home sites are reasonably restricted, insuring a permanently attractive residential section, free from any undesirable features that would be detrimental to the present or future happiness or
value of any home at this beauty spot of Essex County.
